KEEPING HONEST PEOPLE HONEST WITH A SIGN

Posted Signs Prove Effective; Prevent Theft; Deter
Littering; Comply With Local Laws

LOUISVILLE, KY, FEBRUARY 19, 2010: Amidst common law violations such as littering, dumping, and theft online sign company SignsToYou.com finds that all can be drastically reduced with the display of relevant signage.

On the heels of their new site launch online retailer SignsToYou.com finds that even the most honest individual will fall to temptation when it comes to disposing of their trash. It is no secret that littering is a real problem in this day and age. With the eco friendly green movement in full force it is more important than ever to remind individuals that littering is not only illegal but punishable by fine.

"We currently offer an entire section of no littering signs." said Deia Brown, SignsToYou.com CSR. "One thing people often overlook when enforcing no littering is making sure they have a place for people to put their trash. You should always have a trash can nearby for convenience."

For property and business owners it can become even more frustrating when others dump their trash on business premises or on remote locations of the property. For business owners this can often mean people utilizing company dumpsters which if full makes a mess, or worse in compliance with city regulations. Property owners perhaps face the biggest burden of all, people dumping on locations of the property found along road sides such as slopes or sink holes. This can be very frustrating as the property owner takes the burden of cleaning up the mess.

"Based on customer response dumping is a common problem nationwide." said Brown. "We've devoted another entire section to preventing dumping. It is worth noting that a video surveillance sign can also be effective to prevent dumping if posted in the area."

Perhaps closer to home SignsToYou.com posted signs such as Neighborhood watch, No Trespassing, and No Soliciting all have been proven to keep out unwanted visitors. Thieves look for the low hanging fruit, if a neighborhood actively touts watch program is likely to prevent robberies. Related, keeping out trespassers is often an important thing if the property owner has a large plot of land. While surprising a common excuse trespassers use is, "I didn't know it was your land". These types of signs become a necessity to prevent such occurrences.

SignsToYou.com is an online sign company offering signs you can design online. Find everything from metal parking signs to banners and lettering.
